

Avi Salomon

Solan Systems CEO

After over a decade of engineering experience in a world-leading industrial air conditioning enterprise, Avi Saloman decided to establish his own company, Solan, in 2005.

Solan was created with the objective of devising smart, tailor-made solutions meeting the unique demands of each and every client since they are the ones most familiar with their particular work environments and logistics requirements.

Drawing on his extensive experience in refrigerated transport, increased efficiency, enhanced forklift security, and upgrading logistics, Avi derives great satisfaction from providing total solutions that meet and even exceed customers' expectations.

"High reliability and quality are my guiding principles and I would rather relinquish a job than compromise by offering my customers inferior technology. Contact me and I will be pleased to work with you to configure a customized solution for now and into the future."
